

Drop by drop

You visit a friend and in the yard you see that his father, a hose in hand, is about to start washing the family car. You decide to:

- offer to help him;
- suggest that using a bucket of water and a brush to wash the car would save a lot of water;
- suggest that the car be taken to a carwash;
- say nothing, because you are shy and besides you think it is none of your business;
- do something else.
