

Garbage in the forest

You are walking in the nearby forest and notice that in a clearing, a group of youths have finished their picnic and are about to leave without cleaning up their litter. What would you do?

- You would go to the group and remind them to clean up their litter before leaving.
- You would wait for them to leave and then collect the litter.
- You would write down their car plate number and inform the local police/administration about the incident.
- You wouldn't do anything — a little more litter in the forest won't do much harm.
- Something else.
